RED DESERT CHECK-IN

FOR DISCHARGE PLANNERS, CARE TEAMS & ADVISORS

When a patient goes home, who's checking on the house?

Jenell, owner. Certified Senior Home Safety Specialist®, about 10 years in medical alert emergency dispatch, EMD and CPR certified.

You see it all the time. Someone is safe enough to go home and doesn't need full-time care, but the family lives three states away. The rug is still curled, the bathroom is dark at night, and nobody has pressed the medical alert button since it was installed.

That's the gap I work in. I visit older adults who live on their own in St. George, Santa Clara, Washington, and Hurricane, look at what's changed, and send the family a clear written update. When something needs your team or their doctor, I tell them.

Good times to refer a family

- Going home after a fall, surgery, or a hospital or rehab stay
- Lives alone and the family is out of the area
- Has a medical alert that no one has tested in a while
- The family isn't sure the home is still safe, but full-time care isn't needed
- Snowbirds leaving a home empty for the season

What I don't do

Red Desert Check-In is non-medical. I don't provide hands-on care, medications, transportation, or emergency response. I don't sell products, do repairs, or take referral fees. Families get honest observations, and your plan of care stays yours.

How a referral works

1. Give the family my number or website, or call me with their permission.
2. I set up a free 15-minute call with the family to see what they need.
3. After each visit, the family gets a written update. With their okay, I can keep you in the loop too.
